Frequently Asked Questions

Can I Ride in the Moving Truck with the Movers?

Yes, in most cases with man and van services like London Man Van, one passenger can ride in the van. However, this depends on the type of service and vehicle capacity.

We provide one passenger seat in most of our vans at no additional charge. Be sure to confirm availability when booking.

Do Moving Companies Allow Passengers in the Van?

Not all moving companies allow passengers due to insurance and safety policies. Smaller services like London Man Van usually do, if space allows.

It's always best to check in advance. Some companies prohibit it for liability reasons, especially during long-distance or international moves.

Is It Safe to Travel with the Movers During the Move?

Yes — as long as you are seated securely with a seatbelt, it is safe to travel in the van. Safety is our top priority at London Man Van.

We maintain our vehicles regularly and ensure all safety measures are in place. Passengers must remain seated and follow the driver's instructions.

Can I Help Load the Van and Ride Along?

Yes. If you book a self-loading or man and van service, you're welcome to assist and ride along. This can reduce time and cost.

- You help with loading/unloading
- You ride in the van (if space permits)
- Lower hourly rate compared to full service

Why Do Some Movers Not Let You Ride in the Van?

Some movers restrict passengers due to insurance coverage, licensing rules, or vehicle configuration.

Large companies or cross-country movers may not offer this option. It's less common with flexible man and van services like ours.

What Are My Alternatives If I Can't Ride in the Van?

If riding in the van isn't possible, you can follow in your own vehicle or take public transport.

- Coordinate arrival time with the moving team
- Use a taxi or rideshare
- Designate a friend or family driver

Can I Ride in the Van if I'm Hiring a Man and Van Service?

Yes! Most man and van services — including London Man Van — allow one passenger per vehicle, free of charge.

This is one of the main reasons customers choose us for their local moves. Just let us know in advance so we can allocate a suitable vehicle.
